Based on OpenSource Chat API
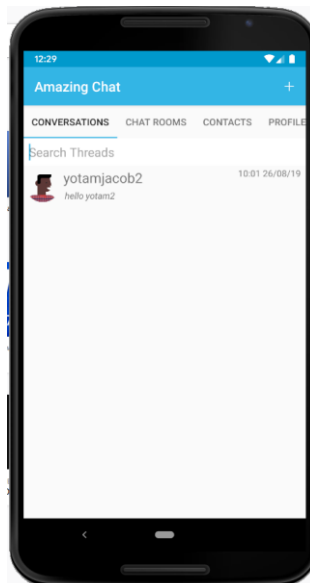

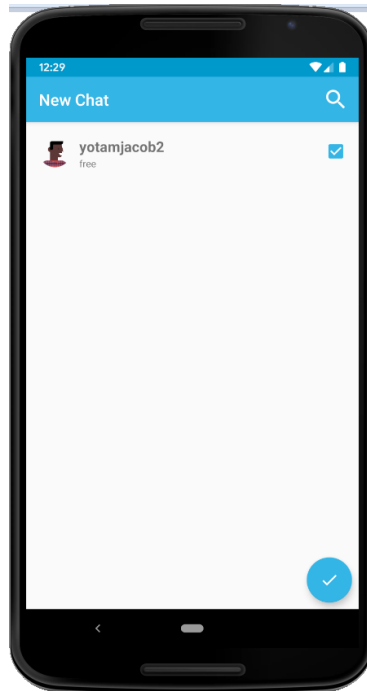

User Manual

1. Login Page

    a. To sign up and use the chat, you will need to provide a valid e-mail and password. Click "Login" to start using to chat, or "Register" if you are a new user. You can also enter as an anonymous user, having restricted access to some of the functions. Finally, there is an option to reset your password if you have forgotten yours.
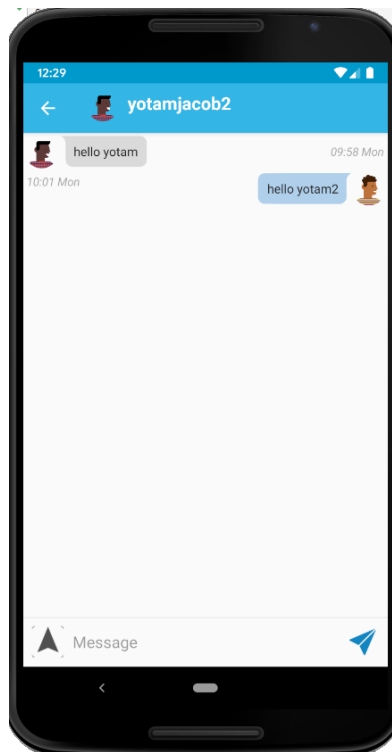

2. Main Page ("Lobby"):

In the lobby, there are a few functions you can use:

a. Click on the "+" sign on the top right corner, to start a new chat with a friend of yours, or choose from existing conversations.

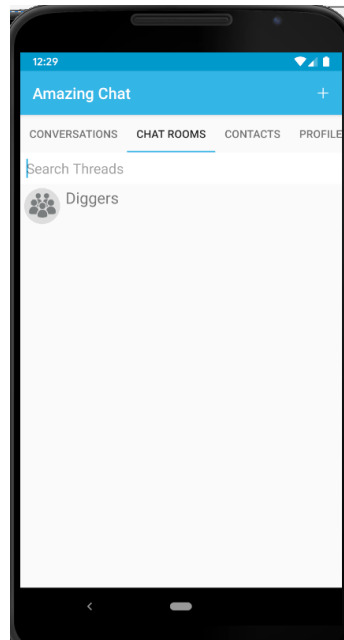

b. Choose the "Conversations" tab to browse open chat threads. You can also search for a specific thread. Selecting a specific thread will open the conversation window with that user:
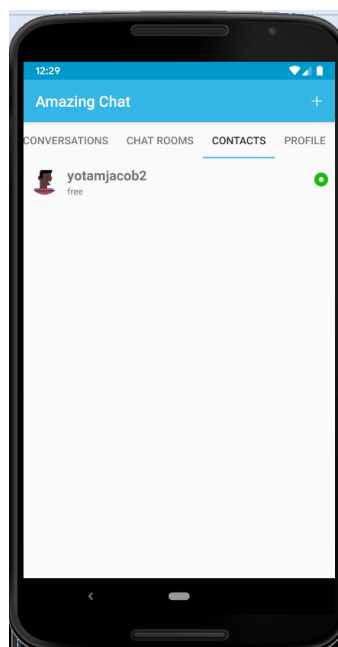

In the conversation window you can see the messages history between you can the other user. Also, you can send pictures, take pictures and send them on the spot or even send your location. To save a picture the other contact have sent you – click on it to enlarge it, and then click the save button.
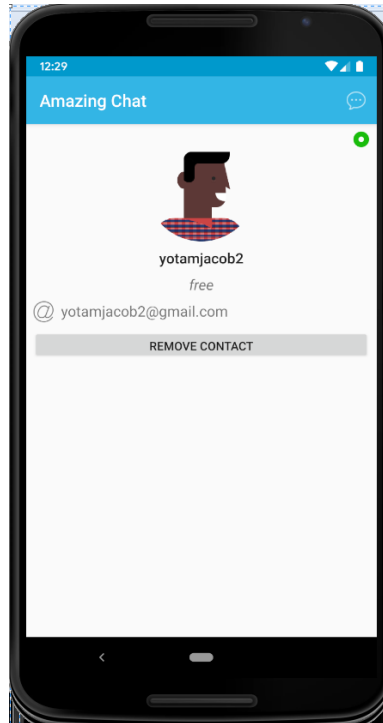

c. Choose the "Chat Rooms" option to view existing chat rooms, which support multiple users conversations. You can also start your own chat room by clicking on the "+" symbol on the top right corner.

d. Choose the "Contacts" option to view your contacts list.

Either add a new contact by clicking the "+" symbol or select the contact to view their profile page (click on the contact's profile to enlarge it):

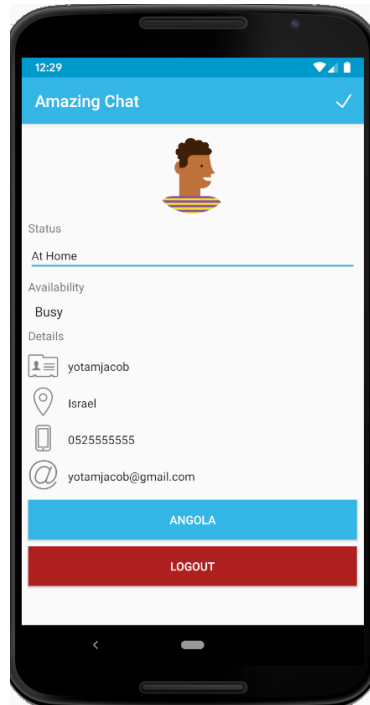

In the contact page, you can see the user's availability status, email and profile picture. You can start a conversation with them (Top right corner symbol) or remove the contact from your list (At the bottom of the window). Note the Green circle in the example above – it resembles the availability status of the contact.

e. Finally, Choose the "Profile" option to view your profile page:

In your profile page, you can see your Profile Picture, Nickname, Availability, Location, Mobile Phone, Email address, and even your selected country's flag. Also, you can see your images gallery by clicking on your profile picture.

To edit any of these details or Logout from the chat, simply click on the setting button on the top right corner of the screen. This will open the settings window:
